1. About Lixis

This website is operated by Lixis, Sao Paulo, Brazil ("Lixis", "we"). Lixis develops and commercializes decision products built from permitted vehicle-observation data, in cooperation with camera-network and infrastructure partners. Information on this website is provided for general business and informational purposes.

2. No commercial commitment

Nothing on this website is a binding offer, guarantee, commitment or representation that a particular camera network, dataset, geography or use case will be commercially viable.

Any partnership, product deployment, revenue arrangement, data access or customer engagement is subject to separate evaluation and a written agreement. References to commercial opportunities, potential revenue or possible applications are illustrative and are not guaranteed outcomes.

3. Network assessment

Information submitted through our assessment or contact forms may be used to evaluate whether an organization or network may be suitable for Lixis products or partnerships. Submitting information does not create a contractual relationship and does not oblige Lixis to proceed with an assessment, partnership or commercial engagement.

Please do not submit confidential information, camera data or personal data about third parties through the website. If a conversation requires it, we will agree appropriate confidentiality terms first.

4. Data and permitted use

Lixis obtains no right to access or process operational camera-network data because an organization contacts us through this website. Any processing of vehicle observations or other operational information requires a separate agreement establishing, as applicable:

- applicable legal bases;
- security requirements;
- data-retention rules;

- geographic or contractual restrictions;
- mechanisms for suspension or termination.

You must not use this website:

- for unlawful purposes;
- to attempt unauthorized access to Lixis systems or infrastructure;
- to introduce malicious software or interfere with the website's operation;
